The procession moved from Bryd to Franklin, and thence to the cemetery. The extreises at the tomb were very simple, and consumed but a short space of time. The hearses were stopped on the west side of the circle, and when the members of the family and the honorary pall-bearers had formed near the graves the caskets were brought to the tomb and placed on the self-lowering device and were at the bottom of the graves before the funeral services were begun.

Right Rev. R. A. Gibson conducted the exercises, assisted by the Rev. J. J. Gravatt, Rev. Meade Clark and Rev. arthur Johns. When the usual service for the dead was about half completed Bishop Gibson called upon Senator Daniel, who had been requested by members of the family, to make a short address.

Senator Daniel did not speak but two or three minutes. The request to make an address had been received only a short time before, and his remarks were impromptu. He spoke in a subdued tone, becoming the solemnity of the hour. He began as follows:

"The holy exercises in which we are engaged and the sacred spot on which we are assemiled to-day does no incline our hearts to hear a speech. But I have been requested by those who are nearest by ties of blood-to the congenial dust, now gathered here, to say a few words, pand my regard for them forbids my refusal."

Senator Daniel then gave a short sketch of the pulsic services rendered by Montree and alluded to his marriage with much as five pounds apiece, and, what is horrible to hear, laundered, linen-bosom shirt that $1.50 only duplicates. Heavy trading and an object refusal."

Senator Daniel then gave a short sketch of the pulse services rendered by Monice, and alluded to his marriage with the daughter of a New York Tory. It was characteristic of the mailiness and the straightforwardness of the man, he said, that he should have gone on and did as his head and heart directed, and brought to Virginia the woman who was to so deeply influence his ...e.

"The period covered by the administration of Ar. Monroe," said the speaker, "was called the era of good feeling. So may we by his administration and by this service be impressed with the necessity of being one people, that the era of good-feeling may spring up as the flower from the grave."

When Senator Daniel had concluded this sarvices for the dead were completed, and the benediction pronounced by Bishop Gibson.

ANSWER. TO SWANSON.

Mr. Growersor observed, that nothing, would be more destructive than to have the Democrate come into power, but that was an impossibility for the next two years. Replying to the remarks of Mr. Swanson, or Virginia, he said there need be no fear of retailation from a country which could not live ninety days without purchasing food supplies from the outside. Answering a statement made by Mr. Clark, of Missouri, as to conditions existing when Mr. Cleveland went in a Fresident, Mr. Grosvenor said: "Immediately upon the election of Cleveland there was practically a suppression of the revenues of the government into the treasury of the United States. It was natural; it was inevitable. It would happen again if somebody other than Roosevelt should be elected President next year."

While speaking of the prospects of the Democratic party, Mr. Clark, of Missouri, asked if Mr. Grosvenor knaw that of the inteteen men convicted in St. Louis sixteen were Republicans.

"I don't know," replied Mr. Grosvenor, "but if that is true it don't speak well for the fairness of the administration of justice." (Loud applause followed on the Republican; side).

He said that he recontract the great work Mr. Williams had done for the South in the upbullding of the Seaboard Air Line system, and in bringing that property to its present state of prosperity. I then saw Mr. Williams, who, realizing the benefit which would result to the interests which he represented his friends and the Seaboard generally through such an alliance, promptly gave his cordial approval to my suggestions and expressed not only a willingness, but a desire, to have Mr. Ryan and his friends and in its management. Mr. Ryan associated Messre, Blair and Company with him, and an agreement was reached. In order that all interests should work in harmony, Ladenburg, Thalman and Company and T. Jefferson Coolidge, Jr., who made on offer of a loan to the company, were conferred with, and as a result a proposition agreed to, which I had the pleasure of submitting to the Board of Directors of the company, and which has just been unanimously approved." Mr. Grosvenor, replying to the statement of Mr. Clark, of Missouri, as to the probability of the Democrats gaining control of the next Congress and electing the noxt President, said he would show what the result would be. "I put Now York in this column against my own judgment," he said, adding: "If the Democrats do not carry New York city by double the vote given Mr. McClollan, they will be defated in that State."

He said this gave the Democrats 161 votes and 62 doubtful.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—Correspondence that passed between United States Attorney Summers, at Omaha, and Attorney-General Knox in June last, in the matter of the charges against Postmaster Fisher, of Hastings, and United States Senator Dietrich, of Nebraska, and the investigation of the same by the grand Jury, was made public to-day. The letter of Mr. Summers to the Attorney-General transmits the testimony involving Dietrich and Fisher and says:

"The grand jurors insisted upon makng a thorough and scarching investigation. This investigation was discontinued it my request because of the fact that the conduct of a United States Senator was involved in the question they desired to investigate. News was received here last night of the death at his home in Saitville of pneumonia, on Monday night, of Mr. George W. Palmer, one of the most prominent citizens of Washington county. age and was a native of syracuse, though he came to Virginia in 1835, and had lived in Washington county since. He was for many years the partner of the late William H. Stuart, father of Hon. Henry C. Stuart, in the ownership and operation of the said works at Saitville, Va. and the two were associated in business for a period of many years. During this time Mr. Palmer accumulated an estate of over a million dollars, but he later met with reverses, and at the time of his death was worth practically nothing.

Though a Northern man, Mr. Palmer was a Democrat, and was thoroughly identified in every way with the interests of his adopted State. He was at the time of his death a member of the Miller School Board, and had held positions of trust in his county. He had in his time, perhaps, projected more business enterprizes than any man in Southwest Virginia, and was devoted to the development of his section. He was liberal to churches and schools and was loved by all who knew him. It is said that Mr. Palmer probably brought more foreign capital to Virginia than any man in the State.
